An Ingenious Rascal.

A London correspondent tells the following extraordinary story connected with the Tay bridge catas ror be : A gentleman, rasident with his wife in a large town in the north of Eogland and em; leyed ny possible, he intended to make the most of the remaining days of the year, and had arranged to go to Dundee via the Tay bridge on the evening of Sunday, the 28 h D.c.mber. When the apponent was made in the newspapers on the 29 h that the bridge had felled, carrylog with it an express train and many pass of gers, it did not ecospe the eye of the gentleman's wife, who usturally feared that her husband was one of the victims. In this impression she was confirmed by the fact that she recaived no letters from him and could find no trace of him at places where his whereabouts were likely to be known. Hasteoit g to Dundees the was an anxious speciator for several days of the operations for the recovery of the bodies of the missing passeogers. Unitablely she returned home, bemoaning ner will whood, and the firm for whom her itushand had been collecting accounts gave up the money as lost. As nothing further could be done, matters were allowed to rest until the body of the supposed ve im could be found, but as time were on the prespect of recovery b cam · less and less, and all interested persons reluctantly become resigned to their late. Some time after a gendeman who knew the "missing passenger" well, happened to be in London on business, and while entering a trascar one day he was surprised to see his 'deceased" friend song y enscruded in a corner of the vehicle. Explanations were asked, but vicusly manifes.ed an interest in this person's husband of two wives - Boston Post QUININE .- There are consumed in the Unised States annually 1,000,000 ounces of quinne. Now Jersey is largely responsible for this, of course. Since the du'y on quivine was remov-Smoking and Chewing Tobacco, od the richest bark has gone to Lindon and the poor has come here. The quicine extracted Piano Wareroom, 69 King street from each is the same in quality, but more of the lower aiksicids are found in the poorest grades of bark. The sicok in the world's market has increased in five years from 53 134 bales to 110 105 in 1880 This increase is owing largely to the increased popularity of quinine as a tonie, and does not ac usily show an epidemic of malaria. To day there is on hand in the united markets of the world only abou-ziement was sentenced to undergo tweete months' imprisoment with hard labor. The fear now is that he will be liberated only to be brought again before the court for becoming the

for months' supply.
Since the day on quinine was removed, it has become an article of speculative trade, whereas formerly it was a simple matter of sup tly and demand. Owing to this, the price of quioine has increased instead of failing off. as it was expected it would do. This advance has not besa telt by the retail buyer.

Last year there was a fair, bealthful demand and consumption of quinine in the United States, unequally divided between the Eist and West, but aggregating 1,000 000 ouce s. In the East the consumption was axtracrainary In the West it fell off proportionately. During Jaouery and February of this year there was an unusual demand for quinine in this country, but it is considered to be almost entirely speculative. Just at this rime dealears are waiting for so expected decline in price from the $2.80 an ounce which quinne brings at wholesale. If the recent wet sesson is followed by a period of drought, quining will hardly be a utug in the marker, for just those conditions are necessary to the descripment of the malaria which makes quining active. The lower a kaloids exu.c.ed from the quipine sell at wholesale at frym 25 cents to $1 en onuce, and are sometimes used in the West. Great quantities, too, of the lowest grade are exported to China, where they command about 50 cents an ounce. It is not denied that the cinchons and other aik sloids thus extracted are to all purposes nearly as as tal asquining, if the boying public will believed it. About 600 000 ounces of cinchons are consumed in the United States. In Europe nothing but the best quinine is consumed.
